Laser Micro Peel

As each year passes, our faces show the effects from the sun, the environment and the normal process of ageing. The results are loss of skin tone, unwanted age spots, blemishes, enlarged pores, lines and wrinkles. Today, most of these undesirable effects of aging can be reversed with laser micro peels.

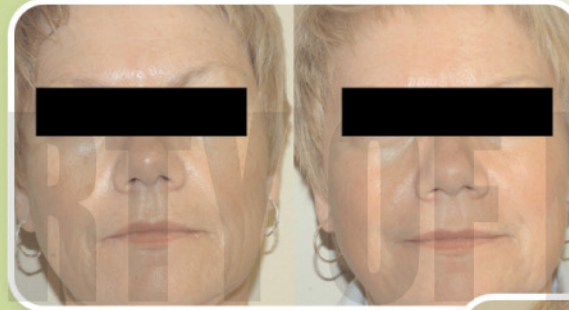

What is a Laser Micro Peel?

A Laser Micro Peel is a light laser peel that safely removes the outer layers of skin. The removal of damaged epidermal layers of skin stimulates fresh new layers of skin to emerge from below. As new cells begin to form after the procedure, the patient will begin to see smoother, tighter, and more vibrant skin.

On your visit you will comfortably recline in a chair and a topical numbing agent will be placed on your face. Your laser specialist will individually tailor your treatment to best fit you and the condition to be corrected. Once the procedure begins, the laser precisely resurfaces the skin to a specific depth depending on your skin's condition. The procedure for most patients can be done in less than 30 minutes.

How long is the healing process?

The benefit of the Laser Micro Peel is that there is virtually no downtime. A patient with a procedure performed on a Friday, can normally return to work the following Monday. Any redness remaining after three days can be easily covered by makeup.

What to expect?

Immediately after the procedure your face may feel as if you have a sunburn. Your skin care specialist will give you important instructions on how to clean and care for the treated area. You will be given instructions for proper usage of moisturizer and sunscreen following the procedure. This will help to protect your face, while fresh new layers of skin emerge from below. Within three to four days, you will begin to notice a smoother, healthier and more youthful appearance.

What you should know?

One or two treatment sessions may provide satisfactory results for most individuals depending on your skin type and condition. However, additional sessions may be required for those who wish to achieve more dramatic and longer lasting effects.

Who is it for?

Laser Micro Peel is best suited for those individuals who are searching for quick and effective solutions for the removal of small facial wrinkles, solar lentigos, freckles and/or age spots plus a smoother, healthier, younger looking appearance
