Neck Rejuvenation

Our face is not the only area that shows the signs of aging. With time, the skin on our neck loosens and begins to sag. Fatty deposits occur beneath the chin and along the jaw line. Lines around the neck deepen and become more prominent. Years of sun exposure can cause a permanent redness in the skin of the neck and upper chest that is difficult if not impossible to hide.

Today one can combat these signs of aging with a simple procedure called neck rejuvenation. Neck rejuvenation treatments can help restore your neck and upper chest to a more youthful appearance.

What options are available?

Your skin care specialist has many treatment options available to rejuvenate the appearance of your neck. More than one session or a combination of treatments may be recommended in order to achieve the results you desire. Most neck rejuvenation treatments include one or more of the following procedures.

- Chemical Peel: When applied to the skin, a chemical peel lightly exfoliates the damaged outer layers of skin. This not only encourages newer healthy skin to grow but it also helps to tighten the skin and fade away any age spots and/or freckles on the skin.
- Microdermabrasion: This is a superficial skin peel procedure that involves massaging away the first layer of skin with tiny crystals. Though this treatment is mild and may need multiple sessions, results include tighter skin, new collagen growth and lightening of unwanted skin pigments with no discomfort or downtime.

- Laser Skin Resurfacing: Some of the most dramatic results can be obtained with the use of a laser. When used in the hands of a skilled skin care specialist a laser can safely remove unsightly veins, age spots, redness, wrinkles and help to stimulate new collagen growth for a tighter and firmer appearing neck.
- Mini Face Lift: The mini-lift was designed for individuals between 30 and 60 years of age who desire to correct lower facial and neck sagging.

This procedure involves tightening of the skin on your neck. Your surgeon may choose to use liposuction to remove excess fatty pockets in your neck to further enhance your appearance.

What can I expect?

You don't have to let your neck make you look and feel older than you really are. With modern cosmetic treatment options, your skin care expert can improve most of these conditions. Loose skin can be tightened, lines and wrinkles can be softened, redness and age spots can be erased, fatty pouches can be removed, and the signs of excessive sun exposure can be diminished.
